Optimising savings through cutting-edge spend management

In these economically unpredictable times, organisations are deploying smart cost-saving measures for optimising the resources available to them.

That's precisely why smart organisations are increasingly implementing Spend Management solutions - an effective new business tool to create and sustain value.

Spend Management is becoming progressively more popular globally and it is sure to empower your organisation in the following ways:

- Control unplanned spends – An impulse purchase results in an individual not buying an item from a preferred or contracted company supplier. He instead purchases it from somewhere else, thus paying a premium for it.

  This results in unnecessary expenses, unless some control mechanism is implemented that:

  1) Restricts this type of purchasing
  2) Highlights such exceptional purchases
  3) Puts into place approval mechanisms to manage such expenses better

- Achieve economies of scale – By directing more spends towards a particular supplier, you can negotiate better pricing based on the volume of spends with the supplier in a given year.
- Improve process efficiencies – Automating sourcing, procurement and payment processes can greatly improve the efficiency of paper-based and manual processes of your organisation.

*Based on the surveys and studies conducted by Visa Inc. on a representative sample size.

60% companies consider advanced card technology as a high priority for increasing their control on spends.

58% companies view advanced card technology as a high priority for negotiating discounts from suppliers.

37% is the planned increase in the use of corporate card usage over the next 12 – 18 months by global companies.

70%+ companies from around the world rank enhanced data as an extremely important feature of their card programs.
