

Toast & Tonic is one of the participants in Restaurant Week.

Fine dine without tears

Foodies have something to rejoice about this coming week – SBI Card Restaurant Week is back again where you can head to for a fine dining experience at a lesser rate.

SBI card customers and general reservations will be available exclusively on www.insider.in

Nachiket Shetye is the man behind this concept. He explains, “It’s a pan-India culinary event spanning 10 days, across five cities. There will be a nominal booking fee of Rs 62 per person and one can pay for the meal directly at the restaurant.”

The meals will be priced at Rs 900 for lunch and Rs 1,100 for dinner.

Toast & Tonic is one of the restaurants which will be participating. Chef-partner Manu Chandra says, “It’s a great initiative for food enthusiasts to experience our restaurant. Our price range may not be affordable for everyone on a regular basis, so with the set menu and a lower price range, this is just perfect.”

There will be a set menu for each of these restaurants, but you will be charged extra if you want some of the signature dishes. Restaurants Baluchi and OKO of The Lalit Ashok Bangalore will be associated with Restaurant Week.

Ravi Maeka, the assistant F&B manager says, “Some of our best dishes make the menu for the week. It’s a value-added meal and totally worth making a visit.”

Priyank Singh Chouhan, the grand chef of Shiro adds, “Restaurant Week is also a great time for us to get more people to taste our food. It’s a win-win for us and for those who cannot come in on a regular basis.” If you’re planning to check out some of the places, make sure you book online and show up to enjoy a luxurious meal for a lower price.

Anila Kurian

Some participating restaurants

- Bombay Brasserie
- Caperberry
- Le Jardin
- Yauatcha
- Ottimo